DALY CITY HAS NEW CHIEF OF POLICE CITY ATTORNEY AND POLICE JUDGE

Large Volume Of Business Transacted By Members At Monday's Meeting Without A Hitch.

The Daly City Council met in regular session Monday evening of this week for the transaction of important business.

The council chamber was found inadequate to accommodate the large concourse of citizens gathered to witness the proceedings, so the council repaired to the auditorium on the second floor, which was packed to overflowing with attentive participants.

Three appointments proved to be the principal matter under consideration.

James G. Reardon was chosen as Chief of Police for the city.

Wade H. Clay was appointed to the position of Police Judge.

Daniel P. Convery won the post of City Attorney.

All three appointments were made by unanimous vote of the four councilmen present.

After reading the minutes of two previous meetings, communications were read from Leslie J. Nicolini, George A. Ryan and L. A. Delatour, each applying for the position of city electrical inspector.

Acting Police Chief Doyle presented a report as to the possession of all police badges under his control.

A letter was read from the Daly City Merchants Association, endorsing the petition of some forty Daly City Merchants, who asked to be allowed the privilege of disposing of the stocks of fireworks now on hand in their possession. This was referred to the Ordinance Committee.

The same organization requested the council to co-operate in securing diagonal parking of vehicles on Mission street and Knowles avenue. Referred to the Street Committee.

The Merchants Association, in a communication to the council, expressed approval of the plan to erect a new library building on Wellington avenue.

The resignation of Ellis C. Johnson as police judge was read and unanimously accepted.

Salaries and Service

Considerable controversy has arisen over proposed increases in salaries of county employes and boosts in maintenance costs of certain departments, over the budget for these items for the past fiscal year.

It appears to us that opposition or criticism to any reasonable increases in these governmental items is not well founded or in good taste.

More grief has been encountered by municipalities, counties and states through inadequate pay for public servants than from any other source. If sufficient amounts are paid officials and employes for salaries there is little likelihood that these persons will attempt to enhance their income from other sources so as to meet necessary expenses in maintaining a livelihood. Also, the payment of fair salaries commensurate with the positions filled will attract efficient and competent people to seek those positions.

The same holds good in the matter of adequate expenditures for maintenance of governmental departments. The payment of an adequate sum will bring the best of service, while inadequate appropriations will result in inferior equipment and service to the people of the community.

We believe that in governmental circles, as well as in private business, "the laborer is worthy of an adequate wage."

SECOND ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT BIG SUCCESS

Affair For Benefit Of Widows And Orphans Fund At Colombo Hall

On Saturday evening of last week the friends of the department turned out in full force to show their appreciation of the fire boys of Daly City.

After the entertainment the floor was cleared for the grand march and dancing was enjoyed by young and old until the early morning hours.

The need of a large public auditorium here was brought to every one's attention when they attempted to dance on the crowded floor.

HEART ATTACK CAUSES FALL

Aged Man Topples Down Flight Of Stairs After Seizure

An aged man, William Cashman, 74, 51 Ringold street, San Francisco, who had been living with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Montgomery of Los Banos avenue, fell down the stairs of the Montgomery home, landing on his head. The man was stricken with a paralytic stroke and a heart attack about 9 o'clock last Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Pryez, next door neighbors of the Montgomery family, saw the victim fall and shouted to the Montgomerys for assistance.

Cashman was removed to the Villa Hospital for treatment. At present his condition is still reported as serious.

It is urged that all members who can possibly do so attend, as these matters are of grave importance and action on plans for the coming picnic on August 30 must be begun at once.

TWISTED VIEWS FAIL TO INJURE RACING

By J. W. MARCHBANK

One gets a queer slant on things unless fortified by facts. Nationally known writers, of vast prejudices but limited and distorted knowledge, try often to put over on the innocent public the most absurd notions. Arthur Brisbane is one of the chief offenders.

Recently the Hearst writer got this off his chest:

"The automobile was conquered. After struggling vainly New York's Riding Club has folded its tent. Its members in the past 55 years included Morgan, Carnegie, Astor, Thomas Fortune Ryan and six Vanderbilts. For years it was hard to 'get in;' then nobody wanted to join, the membership dwindled to almost nothing and now the club is as dead as the Queen of Sheba's camel."

Here comes the big dig:

"The horse has seen his day, except on farms and as a gambling machine on the race tracks."

That is certainly inanity at its zenith.

As C. C. Champine in The Thoroughbred Record remarks, inelegantly but forcefully:

"This is a lot of bunk."

Everyone, even including the purblind Brisbane, knows that, although conditions may not favor horseback riding in the city limits of New York, it is the best of all exercises and that riding clubs are springing up in the smaller cities all over the United States.

We all know, too, that the best cavalry remount is the thoroughbred or the grade thoroughbred. Racing gives an impetus, as Mr. Champine points out, to the breeding of thoroughbreds, and, indirectly, the sport is important in making available the best type of remount. The Remount Service of the Army is carrying on a very valuable work in stationing stallions in convenient places for the benefit of farmers and stock raisers and, as is well known, most of the stallions are thoroughbreds.

CAR COLLISION RESULTS ONLY IN SCRATCH TO CHILD

Small Girl Tossed Ten Feet To Pavement Has Miraculous Escape

A San Francisco child came out of an auto accident unharmed. The collision occurred last Sunday afternoon at Acton and Brunswick

Dona Lee Chase the two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Chase, of 1379 Hayes street, San Francisco was catapulted ten feet to the pavement when the two cars crashed. The child, who was at first feared to be critically injured, sustained only a small scratch on the arm. She had a miraculous escape from death.

The little victim was treated at the Villa Sanatorium.

The other car involved in the collision was driven by Louis H. Demesy, 19, 366 Arleta avenue, San Francisco.

The Chase family were passengers in a machine driven by Charles A. Price, 56, of 516 Hyde street, also of San Francisco.

No one except little Dona Lee was injured.

JUNIOR DRILL TEAM MAKES GOOD IN EXHIBITION

Girls Participated In Meeting Held In Half Moon Bay

Daly City Unit No. 410, American Legion Auxiliary, was well represented at the County Council meeting, held in Half Moon Bay last Sunday. Several members are affiliated with the County uniformed drill team, which participated in the parade and put on an exhibition drill. The pride of the day was the Junior drill team of sixteen girls, who, under the direction of Ed Trier, put on a perfect exhibition drill. These girls are making a great name for themselves throughout the entire dirstrict and hope to get into competition drills soon. Our most loyal sergeant at arms, Alice Reilly, was the only woman to carry the colors in the massed colors marching unit.

The whist held at the home of Mrs. Alice Reilly, last Saturday evening, was successful. Several members, with our president and secretary, will attend the dinner and meeting in Alameda tomorrow, Saturday, in honor of our National president, Mrs. Ada Mucklestone, who is making her annual trip to the west coast.

Our next meeting will be held on Thursday evening, May 21, instead of the regular Wednesday meeting, to permit several members to attend and participate in the initiation and installation of a new Unit, Souhern Pacific Unit No. 412, at the War Memorial building in San Francisco.

MISSING YOUTH FOUND IN SANTA CRUZ HOSPITAL

Goes For Joy Ride With Two Other Boys And Meets With Accident

When Shirley Olsen, 16, of Vista avenue did not return to his home last Sunday, his parents notified the police. Mrs. Olsen said Shirley left home, during the afternoon to go to the local show house.

A description of the missing boy was furnished the police and the search, which ended in a Southern Hospital, was begun.

At an early hour Monday morning the San Francisco police department notified the local department that the boy had been located. He was found in the Santa Cruz Hospital.

Shirley, in company with Earl and Eddie Ward of Niantic avenue, had been involved in an auto accident in Santa Cruz. The Ward boys were uninjured.

The Olsen's left Monday afternoon for Santa Cruz to learn the details and extent of their son's injuries.

Young Olsen is still confined in the Santa Cruz Hospital.

LOCAL VETERANS OF FOREIGN WARS AGAIN VICTORIOUS

(By W. J. L.)

Old Glory Post 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and its ever efficient Auxiliary drill team again participated in the affairs of our neighboring cities. This time in the annual celebration of the Chamarita in South San Francisco.

As excellent parade was held and the prizes were awarded from the movements in the line of march. Old Glory Auxiliary with their gold blouses, drab skirts, overseas caps and Sam Browns made a most striking appearance and were awarded first prize in the competition and came back to Daly City with a beautiful silver trophy to add to the rapidly growing collections of trophies.

At the picnic held recently in Vallemar Park by one of the San Francisco Posts, our Junior V. F. W. from Old Glory Post won two ball games, and from the way these kids are improving will be a hard bunch to beat in the future.

The next attraction will be the celebration of the Chamarita at Milpitas on Sunday next. Again the Post degree team and Auxiliary drill team will participate.

The sixteenth annual convention will be held in San Bernardino on June 14 to 18 and Old Glory Auxiliary drill team will participate in the state wide competition, and the degree team will compete this year for the first time. Over 50 members are expected to attend this convention, and most of them will participate in some form or other in the activities.

Comrade Fred Linser, is making excellent progress in his contest for Department Junior Vice Commander and is building a real issue around his campaign and bringing his program and supporters together in good shape.

Comrade R. F. Brulez is still in the race for Council of Administration, Sixth District.

MAY ROBSON AT 76

May Robson, the screen's "grand old lady," celebrated her seventy-sixth birthday by canning strawberry jelly, buying herself a new car, promising herself a trip to London, and signing a new contract with MGM studios. "My career is just beginning," she stated. "Why, I'm going to work until I'm at least a hundred."

MOTHERS DAY SERVICES HELD LEGION HOSTS

Many Activities At County Council Meeting On Coastside

At a Mothers Day service and barbecue, held at Half Moon Bay by the San Mateo County Council of the American Legion, Half Moon Bay Post No. 474 was host. Many Legionaires from San Francisco and San Mateo Counties were present, with Daly City Post No. 410 well represented.

The parade started about 11:30, led by Parade Marshall Leslie Hill, behind which followed the Daly City Band, then District and County Council officers of the Eighth District, behind which was a beautiful array of National and Legion Post colors, followed by a rifle team from San Mateo Post No. 82; next came that snappy San Mateo County Council drum and bugle corps with their shiny trench helmets. The San Mateo County Auxiliary drill team was next and right behind them were the future musicians of San Mateo, the County Council Sons of the Legion Band, and what a fine showing they made. Next in line were some more sons, our own, Daly City Sons of the American Legion, and then last, but far from least, was the snappiest team of all, Daly City Juniors, who were in charge of Captain Virginia Orr.

The parade ended at the Legion Hall, where everyone stood at attention while the Daly City Band played the "Star Spangled Banner," after which guard mount was put on by the San Mateo rifle team, in charge Captain Bolfing, assisted by San Mateo County Council drum and bugle corps. There were several drill exhibitions, in which the girls of the Daly City Juniors showed they can "strut their stuff," judging from the applause given them.

Now followed the line up for the big open air barbecue, with enough to satisfy every one, during which time we had more music from the Daly City Band.

The more serious business then took place in the Legion Hall, where a beautiful tribute to Mother was given, after which general County Council business was transacted.

Sunday, May 17, will be Second Area meeting at the War Memorial building.

There will be a whist party, given by the Daly City Sons, at Legion Hall, 474 San Diego avenue, next week. Proceeds will go toward payment for their colors.

From May 23 to Memorial Day will be devoted to the annual Poppy Sale. Wear an American Legion Poppy.

COUNTY COUNCIL OF SAN MATEO BUSINESS MEET

Coastside Unit Acts As Hostess To Other Section Units

The San Mateo County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary held its annual all-day meeting in Half Moon Bay on last Sunday. There was a parade in the morning in which the drill team participated with many other uniformed Units. At noon there was a barbecue lunch.

The meeting convened at 2 p. m., in conjunction with the Legion, for a tribute to Mothers Day. Following these ceremonies the Council adjourned to another hall for its own meeting.

The report turned in by Mrs. Lucille Soule on the Southern Dinner held in San Mateo on April 30 was very satisfactory. The pillow slips were awarded to Mrs. Jacobs of Bayshore. The drill team initiated two members for Coastside Unit No. 474. This Unit is rather isolated from the rest of the county Units, but is nevertheless very active. The membership exceeds that of the Post at present. The Unit proved a most gracious hostess. Plans are being made to make this an annual event. The meeting was adjourned in memory of Mrs. Mae Fitzgerald, past president of Redwood City Unit, who recently passed from our ranks.

The next Council meeting will be held in San Mateo Legion Hall, June 12.

It will arrive at the park 10:30 a. m.

The excursion will count as a regular school day for all attending.

Children, teachers and parents accompanying classes must bring basket lunches. Tables will be provided, hot coffee served, and ice cream from "a friend of boys and girls" will be dispensed to all children.

INFLATE INNER TUBE

Before mounting a tire the inner tube should always be partially inflated so that it will not become wrinkled or twisted.

Under-inflated tubes may become caught under the beads of the tire casing or edge of the tire flap and become pinched when air pressure is applied. A pinched tube generally goes flat at once, although in some cases they may run several miles before this happens.

SCOUT TROOP ORGANIZED HERE

Grace Church of Nazarene Sponsors Newly Formed Daly City Body

This troop is sponsored by Grace Church of the Nazarene and bids fair to become a valuable unit of the church and a genuine asset to the community.

Thoroughness and sincerety have been the guiding thoughts thus far in the training of our boys. They have proven beyond a doubt that they can do the job right as evinced at the investure service in which the candidates took part.

District Scout Commissioner R. L. Crane administered the Scout Oath to the Troop Committee composed of Joseph Straughan, Clarence Fox and J. M. Gill. A salute to the flag was led by Senior Patrol Leader Leon Fletcher of Troop 151.

A pine tree depicting the twelve Scout Laws formed an impressive part of the ceremony as candles were lighted and the various laws recited in full by the candidates.

Those receiving their Tenderfoot badges were: Glenn Goode, Ray Humphrey, Bill Humphrey, Gus Vujevich and Melvin Dykeman.

One mother, Mrs. P. Goode, had the honor of presenting her son with his first Scout badge.

Their Scoutmaster, Mr. E. Halcrow, wos unable to be present on account of illness, but sent a message of greeting which was ably presented by his Senior Patrol Leader.

We are greatful to these Scouts for their co-operation and fine Scouting spirit and our troop may be of service to them some time in the future.

The Scouts coming into the troop by transfer are: Benerd Winn, Carl Hildebrand and Winfield Whitney.

Our troop meets on Thursdays from 7 ti 9 p. m. We invite boys who desire to become Scouts to meet with us.

ROOSEVELT ENEMIES THROW UP SPONGE

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Anti-Roosevelt forces are in wild disorder, in fact they are even considering the abandonment of any forceful opposition to the President this year. What's the use of wasting much valuable ammunition for a hopeless cause? That's the question all the leaders of the opposition are asking. Furthermore, in 1940, by reason of the unwritten law about third terms, there will be no Roosevelt battle. And what a chance then, they chortle.

The desperation of the reactionaries is manifest in such a head line as this, in the New York American:

"Maryland Vote Hits New Deal
Breckenridge Holds Roosevelt
Lead To Only 6 to 1"

Could one imagine anything more ridiculous?

* * *

The President's plan to tax the surpluses of corporations is meeting with the whole-hearted approbation if liberals everywhere; conservatives understanding the true meaning of the proposed legislation also are getting behind the bill. As I have said before, the idea is an epoch-making one and undoubtedly will stand out as one of the leading accomplishments of the Roosevelt era when its history is written for posterity.

The opposition party naturally goes to great lengths to discredit the bill, mainly because it embodies so thoroughly the ideals of the New Deal. The minority report intimates that the measure is directly in line with Rexford Tugwell's alleged scheme to turn the American government over to Moscow.

The economic system is being made over and the partial redistribution of wealth made possible by the provisions of the bill is all to the good. We must have more consumer purchasing power and taxation of surpluses will force corporations to distribute most of their current profits.

The privisions of the bill are not as radical as the reactionary press is saying. An analysis shows the provisions are quite moderate. In some instances the corporation tax will be less than under the present corporation tax law.

For example, as pointed out in a recent issue of The Nation, a corporation earning $10,000 a year—and 86 per cent of American corporations earn less than $10,000—may set aside 30 per cent of its income as surplus and yet pay a tax of only 7½ per cent as compared with 10 per cent under the existing law.

If a corporation has a net income of $10,000,000, it may apportion $1,000,000 for surplus and pay only a 4 per cent tax as against 15 per cent at present.

Only when the retained portion of the net income reaches $3,000,000 will the tax be as high as it is now. The gain to the Federal government arises out of the fact that distributed earnings will be subject to the graduated personal income tax. At present corporations may defeat the purpose of the income tax by plowing under virtually their entire savings.

* * *

I have already mentioned the formatiin of a "Brain Trust" by the anti-Roosevelt party. All is not going so well as at least one of the professors, Niles W. Carpenter, of the University of Buffalo, has been found to be tainted with liberalism. At a recent conference Professor Carpenter told the leaders of the National Committee of the opposition and some others from the Senate and the House the kind of platform they should adopt next month at Cleveland. When the professor completed his address, one of the indignant reactionaries is said to have blurted out:

"That guy's a damn radical. Talks like a Communist. Got hair like one, too."

Professor Carpenter is the author of a book on guild socialism and that does not serve to make him any more popular than as a speaker to the men employing him for his supposedly wise counsel.

MINING NOTES OF VARIOUS SECTIONS

J. J. Warren, president of the Consolidated Mining & Smelting Co. of Canada, Ltd., has announced his company had purchased the Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Company's properties at Anyox, British Columbia, but would not operate the mine. The smelting plant would be used, he said, to supplement those of his company. In Vancouver, British Columbia, Charles Bocking, president of Granby said the new owners would take possession immediately. Granby ceased operations on July 31.

While nothing official has yet been given out by Premier Gold Mining Co., owner of the Premier mine, Portland Canal district, and a 40 per cent owner in the Big Bell and Little Bell mines, Western Australia, now in charge of Dale L. Pitt, former manager of Premier, it is generally believed that the latter property will shortly be equipped with milling facilities of capacity of at least 1000 tons daily, and possibly more. Large reserves of $7 ore are said to have been put in sight.

It is expected that crosscut tunnel being driven by Tuscarora Gold Mines, Bridge River, will intersect veins exposed in upper workings 500 feet higher within the next 200 feet, when drifts will be turned upon them. They are said to vary in widths from a few inches to as much as 12 feet in a wide mineralized zone.

Company owns 14 claims extending from the main highway at south fork of Bridge River to Gunn Lake. Work is under direction of T. B. Lewis, superintendent.

The U. S. Customs of Juneau reports more than ten million dollars worth of gold shipped out of Alaska from January 1 to September 1, but B. D. Stewart, Territorial Commissioner of Mines, says that few new mines were opened. Operations were confined mostly to properties already in operation. He is quite distressed at the lack of search for new finds in new areas which means that there is a scarcity of prospectors in the Alaska gold fields.

DEPOSITORS AND STOCKHOLDERS ARE SAFE TODAY

Better Protected Than Ever And Structure Is More Stable

Bank depositors of the United States today are in the safest position they have ever occupied in the history of the nation.

This was the statement made today by A. P. Giannini, chairman of he board of Bank of America, fourth largest bank of the United States, in a nation wide radio address from Washington, D. C.

Giannini attributed the excellent condition of the nation's banks to constructive legislation placed in effect as a part of the policies of the Roosevelt administration.

The California banker enumerated the effective legislative steps that have been undertaken since the crisis of 1933, to protect the depositors and stockholders of American banks.

Giannini pointed out the salutary effect of RFC investment in banks; the stabilizing influence of Federal Deposit Insurance; effective regulation of bank credit; and the divorcement of investment and commercial banking.

"No one will deny that the major features of the policies to which reference has been made are truly constructive,' Giannini said,' "and that our financial structure rests on a sound basis. There is more protection to the public, less hazard to the stockholders and a brighter prospect of success and prosperity than we have seen for many years. That, again, is why I am proud to be a banker. I can view the future with greater confidence because I know that the interests of the depositor are mare adequately safeguarded."

ALL IN A DAY TOMMY HOLDS UP UNCLE SAM

(By Maude Larue Ives)

He was an alley cat, a hardened veteran of many a back yard fight. His body was long and lean and his black coat, faded and unkempt. His would-be white feet were grimy from soot and coal dust, but nevertheless he still maintained his dignity. No doubt he was a mascot in some place of business in the neighborhood, dealing mercilessly with any rat or mouse which ventured within the scope of his hunterlike vision.

Due to his prominence in the business and social world, Tommy felt no fear in starting forth as a pedestrian, although it was late afternoon and traffic was heavy. Into the very thickest of the bustle and din plunged this bold jay walker.

A creaking of brakes and a U. S. mail truck came to a sudden standstill, barely missing the daring stalker, who continued calmly on his way, reaching the opposite side of the street in safety.

Uncle Sam's representative (the driver) smiled and shook his head, "Can you beat that," he said; "a dumb cat holding up Uncle Sam."

All common things, each day's events,
That with the hour begin and end,
Our pleasures and our discontents
Are rounds by which we may ascend.—Longfellow.

RELIGION IN THE NEWS

(By Rev. Miles Dawson)

A radio speaker today appeals for hope as the means of salvation from the evils of the present day. Hope is not the means of salvation, but rather the evidence. The world can have no hope until faith comes, and even faith must follow love. The writer Paul says, "Now abideth faith, hope, and love; these three, but the greatest of these is (not hope) love."

The way out of the world mess is the way to God, and the way to God is Christ and His law. He said He had come to give us a new law, for man had failed under the law of Moses, and His new law, He said, was LOVE. Here is where we must begin, and not with hope. This love must be directed, not to man first, but to God. A great spiritual revival will do it. A foolish columnist last Friday used the Crusades to illustrate his point that great spiritual revivals result in war and bloodshed. The very logic of such an attitude is ridiculous, let alone its historical untruth. To an extent, denominational walls must come down, and Christians must look for a revival, and HOPE will be the result. Hope for the Christian, for the Church, and for the nation.

In Germany, bright yellow arm bands bearing a triangle of large black dots, are placed on the arms of persons who are either deaf, or blind, as a warning to motorists.

LESSON SERMON OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him? even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God." These words from I Corinthians comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, May 17, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Mortals and Immortals." Included among the Scriptual selection will be: "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order: Christ the first-fruits; aftward they that are Christ's at his coming. . . . For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality" (I Cor. 15: 21-23, 53).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Mortality is finally swallowed up in immorality. Sin, sickness, and death must disappear to give place to the facts which belong to immortal man. Learn this, O mortal, and earnestly seek the spiritual status of man, which is outside of al material selfhood" (p. 476).

Designed and constructed at home, a 45-foot cabin cruiser recently made trial runs in San Francisco bay, testing the 150 horse power engine and then the craft's spread of four sails.

BLUES GIVEN EDGE OVER TANFOS

State Leaguers Need More Hitting Strength For Victory

Battling to move up a few places in State League standings, the Daly City Tanforans will be underdogs when they meet the strong San Mateo Blues Sunday at 2:30 down the peninsula.

The teams have met once before, when the Blues eeked out a 3-2 victory in one of the tightest conflicts seen on the San Mateo diamond for many a day. However, Justin Fitzgerald, manager of the Blues, has augmented his team by the addition of Frank "Bomber" Sobrero, former Santa Clara grid star, in the catcher's position, and Sobrero's batting strength is figured to give the peninsula nine the edge. The "Bomber" has whacked out home runs in his first two games in the State loop.

Still a bit disappointed by his team's showing lately, Manager Ray Volkman is looking around for a new player or two to give the Tanforans more power at the bat.

San Mateo will start off with either Pudgy Gould or Walt Lister on the mound, and if the former gets the call the Tanfos will have a better chance to win.

Volkman will probably start off with Bill Sturtevant pitching, Volkman at catcher, Johnny Burke at first, Mickey Hannan at second, Lou Palmini at third, Johnny Vasquez in the shortstop patch, "Tex" Petrocchi in right field, Paul Kellman in center, and either Jack Gertsenberg or George Hailer in left field. He may, however, discover a new player and change the line up in his favor.

ENTERTAINS GUESTS AT BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Theresa Vaznaugh of San Jose avenue entertained, Saturday afternoon, in honor of her little son Fred, who celebrated his second birthday.

The table was prettily decorated in pink and white crepe paper and flowers. A huge birthday cake occupied the center of the table and the little guests each received a small doll as a favor. The boys dolls were dressed as cowboys and the girls dolls as cowgirls.

The guests were Mrs. Frances La Barbera and daughter Beatrice, Mrs. May Milo and granddaughter Beverly Keagle, Mrs. Helen Concci and son David Lee, Mrs. Stanley Galli and daughter Barbara, Mrs. Jennie Flores and son Lewis, Mrs. George Rettig and son George and Mrs. Frances Aiello and daughter Virginia.

ENTERTAINS FRIENDS

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ennis of Irvington street entertained a group of friends, Friday evening of last week.

After a delightful evening of cards, dainty refreshments were served to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. George Romiguiere, Mr. and Mrs. James Reardon and Mrs. Minnie Rancatore.

Titusville, Pa., is celebrating the 75th anniversary of the modern petroleum industry, which had its beginning in the drilling of the Drake well near that city in August, 1859. The development of the oil industry, especially since the advent of the automobile has been amazing. The United States produced more than a billion barrels of crude oil in 1929. It is said, however, that more money has been lost in drilling dry holes than has been made from producing wells since the inception of the industry.

DALY CITY	2	4	333

Still hounded by a batting slump which has possessed the entire team for the past three weeks, the Daly City Tanforans went down in defeat before the hands of the Modesto Reds, 5 to 1, Sunday at Modesto.

HANNAN SCORES

The locals got off to an early lead when Mickey Hannan, who has been laid up with an injured back for three weeks, got on base and scored on a hit by Paul Kellman, but were unable to stay out in front once the Reds started rolling.

Dick Elling, right-handed flinger for Modesto, let the Tanforan club down with five scattered safeties while Sturtevant allowed the Reds eight base blows.

Petterson, Modesto catcher, rapped out a home run to help his team's score along, and third-baseman Anti came through with a triple and a double to aid the cause of the Reds.

SHIFTS LINE-UP

Manager Ray Volkman started Jack Gertsenberg, relief hurler, in left field in place of Hailer, but Gertsenberg failed to hit, although he handled his fielding assignment perfectly.

In other State League games, San Mateo defeated Santa Cruz in a close match, 12 to 11, and Fresno Tigers took a double-header from the Orinda Reds.

INDIANS LOSE

To Sequoia High

IN SLUGFEST

Playing sloppy baseball in their final game of the season, the Jefferson High School tossers dropped an 11 to 5 decision to the Sequoia preps Friday.

The Indians played the first five innings without the services of Paul Ragghianti, stellar first sacker, who was laid up with an earache. However, Ragghianti put on his suit in the sixth and collected two hits, besides fielding well.

Bill Strassburger was at a loss on the mound, allowing the Sequoia players 14 hits—the most he has allowed in two seasons of chucking for the preps.

Seven Jefferson players hung up their togs permanently after the game. They will graduate in June. They are: Harry Rose, George and Paul Ragghianti, Elmer Arthurs, Howard Peterson, John Green and Bill Elder.

JOHNSTON LEADS JUNIOR TOSSERS TO 7-6 VICTORY

Krohn, Kirby Hit Orwitz Pitcher Hard

Taking advantage of an infielder's error in the last inning, the Daly City Tanforan Juniors put over a run to win from the Dr. Orwitz baseball club 7-6, Sunday at the high school diamond.

The Juniors found the opposing pitcher to their liking, chalking up 13 hits, but were unable to do any heavy scoring. Sam Lucia held the Orwitz tossers to 6 safe bingles but they scored 6 runs on their few hits.

Dave Johnston, who has been playing sensational ball since he was moved from shortstop to third base, whacked out three hits for five attempts for the locals, as did Kirby, new shortstop. Harry Krohn, veteran catcher, collected three for four.

Manager Eddie White expects to add a few new players to his roster, and to land a new outfielder soon.

JUNIOR NINE TO TACKLE POTRERO

Locals Expected To Keep Record Intact With Another Win

Eddie White's Daly City Tanforan Juniors will take the field at Jefferson with a strong chance of hanging up another win when they tangle with the Potrero Cubs Sunday at 12 o'clock.

The Junior nine has won all three of its games so far and bids fair to have an impressive record when the season is over.

Gene Keagle, veteran right hander, who was planning a comeback with the locals, may not be in shape by Sunday, so White will string along with Sam Lucia on the mound. Lucia pitched six-hit ball last week.

Other starters are Long at first, Plansky at second, Kirby in the short patch, Johnston at third and Krohn catching. Joe Lucia, Kondeff and an unnamed starter will patrol the outfield.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, Barry Gilbert, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a storm. He makes himself at home. Dozing at the fireplace, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; and a chauffeur, Evans. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss. The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested.

"Did you ever see Kelly?"

"No."

"He was enormous. Must have been six-feet-two in his stockings. I'm five-feet-five in mine. I'd've had to stand on a chair to hit him on top of the head."

"Unless he was sitting in one."

"The body wasn't anywhere near a chair. It was up against the door to the hall. The paper says so. The Filipino got in through the dining room. I got out through the hall door. He saw me. How did I do that, if Kelly was lying against it?"

"I don't know."

"Two more things: The lights were burning full tilt when I left. I could see Kelly's shadow on the blinds as I passed the house on my way home. Were they still burning when the butler came in the next morning! And, if not, who turned 'em out?"

"What's the other item?"

"The other item's the crux of the whole business," Jack answered. "Mike rushed me out because the phone rang, and the fellow that rang it was coming over to talk to him. Did he come? If not, why not? And, if that fellow did come, isn't it likely that he's the guy that killed Kelly?"

CHAPTER IV

It was long after one o'clock when they walked out of the Tombs.

She was all in now. Barry splurged on a taxi to take her "home" to the dingy boarding house where the disowned Ridders lived, in the upper Forties. In spite of her protests, Barry kept his word as to giving her most of that hundred and fifty. "It isn't mine," he declared.

"We'll eat together Monday, after I've talked to Winslow. I'll be around about six o'clock."

It was two now—a warmish Saturday afternoon. Nearly forty-eight hours before he could hope to find the attorney. Any inexpensive hotel would do. He registered at one a few blocks from Peggy's. "Barry Gilbert," he wrote.

From his new residence, Barry went to the Astor, and cabled Mrs. Ridder. The message read:

'Making good stop water-wagon and on track of a job stop friend of mine met in Florida locked up for murder didn't commit stop can you arrange credit here up to two thousand dollars stop won't use unless necessary for friend and will return every penny stop wire Peter Winslow lawyer for confirmation if desired stop this is my big chance to do something worth while stop writing details all's well don't hurry back love. John."

"I'll need that two thousand quick," Barry thought. "Winslow'll want a retainer, and there'll be a lot of other things." Barry wondered what to do with his forty-eight hours. "I'll stroll down to Kelly's place," he decided, "and give it the once-over."

From Sixth avenue, he turned into 16th street, and stopped before what the tabloids were calling "the scene of the murder." It was an old-fashioned red-brick house, with a bay window, and a heavy front door. A policeman stood guard, and a group of the curious loitered as near as they

Remarkable; Barry thought, how people could stand staring at anything connected with a tragedy.

There was another little group at the corner, where workmen were putting in a new traffic light standard. Broken off short, its predecessor lay on the pavement. Having nothing better to do, Barry asked, "What's the excitement?"

"Taxi smash."

"When?"

"Just before two o'clock yesterday morning. Killed a woman. Crushed her right up against that post. Broke it off short. Don't seem possible."

No wonder the Judge was "upset."

Curious, Barry thought, these two violent deaths within a few yards and a few hours of each other. Curious, too, that the Judge's stroll should have brought him so near the house in which Kelly lay murdered, but no more remarkable than the series of events that had involved Barry in the whole affair. "Life's full of coincidences," Barry mused. "It's only in fiction that people pay much attention to 'em. Winslow said the Judge went for a walk, and that's the simplest explanation of the whole matter.

He was at the attorney's office before ten o'clock on Monday morning. He was ushered into the pleasantly furnished corner room that was Peter's. The lawyer rose, as Barry entered, and came forward, one hand outstretched, and the other holding a newspaper. "The early bird, eh?"

"I'm not exactly looking for worms," Barry replied. "I want that position we were talking about, if I can get it, but, just now, I'm a lot more interested in this Kelly murder. You've read about that, I suppose."

Peter nodded.

"I saw the headlines after you left the Hambidges on Friday," he said. "I didn't bother about it much then. But, this morning, I found Saturday's Herald Tribune on my desk. And, of course, I'm always interested in murders."

"I know the boy who's accused of this crime," Barry said.

"You do? That's exciting. Tell me about it."

Barry did, omitting only the detail of Ridder's identity.

"I met them in Florida," he related. "Rogers worked in a hotel there. I liked the girl even then. She'd been putting up such a game fight to make a man of her husband, and was succeeding so wonderfully. I suppose I'm the only friend they've got around here, and that's why she came to me."

Winslow listened sympathetically.

"That sort of thing always gets me," he observed. "A woman tied up to some man who's not worthy of her, and in love with him."

"This boy's not so bad," Barry argued. "And it's a lead-pipe cinch that he didn't kill Kelly."

"Think so."

"Dead sure."

"All right. Make me sure."

Barry tried.

"There was someone else coming when Jack left," he concluded. "If he came, he either found Kelly dead, in which case he'd've given the alarm, or he found Kelly alive, in which case, of course, Jack didn't kill him."

"Very ingenious," Peter remarked. "But what makes you think someone else was coming?"

"That's why Kelly fired Jack out."

"Who says so?"

"Jack—and Peggy."

"Not very conclusive," Peter objected.

"Who do you think did it?"

"I'm not concerned as to who did it," Peter declared. "Only as to who didn't."

"Jack didn't. You'd know that if you looked at him."

"I feel sorry for the girl. I'll go down to see Rogers. Somebody ought to've gone—long ago—to file an appearance. There shouldn't have been any preliminary hearings without proper representation."

"You'll take the case, then?"

"I suppose so. Now, how about that job I thought we might land at my brother's?"

"I certainly need it."

"Let's see if he's in."

"Get Jamison Winslow," he instructed the operator.

In a few minutes the phone rang.

"That you, Jimmy?" Peter said into it. "You've heard of John Clarke Ridder, haven't you? Well, his son's in here, and wants work. How about it? Got anything over there?"

The instrument made raucous noises.

"All right," Peter continued, at last. "I'll send him around, and you talk to him.

"Chrysler building," he informed Barry, "and he's waiting for you."

"I don't know how to thank you."

"What for?"

"Mainly for helping two people in a lot of trouble."

Peter smiled once more.

"That inside-job theory sticks to my mind," Barry remarked. "Is there a Mrs. Mike Kelly?"

Peter laughed outright.

"You're determined to be Sherlock Holmes, aren't you?" he asked. "All right. There is a Mrs. Mike Kelly. I'd just finished reading about her. She sued for divorce recently and withdrew the case. Do you think that might indicate that she killed her husband?"

"Cherchez la femme, you know."

Peter laughed again.

"Search for the woman," he translated. "But, then, there appear to have been a good many women in Kelly's life. We mustn't jump at conclusions."

"No," Barry admitted. "No, I suppose not.

"All the same," he thought, the other side of the door, "it's pretty evident that a woman who sues for divorce is a little bit anxious to get rid

But there was nothing doing at Jamison Winslow's.

"I'm sorry," he said, "but we're laying off men every day now. Why aren't you on your father's newspaper?"

"My father and I haven't been very friendly."

"So I've heard. But I've got an idea. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."

It was quite a simple idea.

"We place thousands of dollars worth of advertising with The Globe. And I know the city editor pretty well. His name's Harwood. If I gave you a letter to Ernie, and he gave you a job, and you made good while the boss is in Europe, wouldn't that square things when he got back?"

Barry grinned.

"It might," he said, "and then again it might not."

"What I heard," Jamison Winslow went on, "was that your father wanted you in his business. If that's true, he'd certainly be pleased at your going in."

"I'd like to succeed on my own."

"Well, why not? We don't have to tell Harwood who you are. Not in the beginning, anyway."

"That is an idea," Barry agreed "Since the row, I've been calling myself Barry Gilbert."

"Not a bad pen name," Jamison Winslow declared. "All right; we'll stick to it. I've a hunch that you'd make a good newspaper man."

"That's what your brother said."

Ten minutes later, Barry Gilbert—himself again, so to speak—was on his way to The Globe.

The Globe occupied a new and imposing building in Thirty-ninth street. Asking for Mr. Harwood, Barry found himself in the city room. Men in their shirt sleeves sat at desks, smoking and pounding on typewriters, and most of the people who had rushed in and out of the elevators rushed in and out of the double doors. Harwood's office proved to be a small and comparatively quiet cubby-hole just off the concourse.

He had always been a newspaper man. Square cut, not very tall, but with big hands and broad shoulders his hair was as red as Barry's. He had been John Clarke Ridder's city editor when John Clarke was a cub reporter, and he remained John Clarke's city editor still. John Clarke's friend, too, with more real power, and ability, than any other man on The Globe.

Now he glanced at the Winslow letter, and grunted.

"Think you can write, I suppose?"

"Pretty sure I can't."

"Then what're you gonna do on a newspaper?"

"Get news."

Ernie Harwood looked him over.

"How?"

"Well, just now, it happens that I'm a friend of Jay Rogers."

"The fellow that killed Mike Kelly?"

"The fellow they say killed him."

"Yeah?"

Ernie squinted into the bowl of his pipe.

"How long have you known Jimmy Winslow?" he inquired.

"About half an hour. His brother asked him to get me a job."

"Peter Winslow?"

"Yes."

"Peter Winslow going to defend Rogers?" he snapped.

"Yes."

Ernie reached for a telephone.

"Peter Winslow's defending the Rogers boy," he barked into the instrument. "If it's straight, play it up in the next edition."

To Barry he said, "How did you get Winslow to take the case?"

For the second time, Barry related his story of meeting the Rogers in Florida. From there, he jumped to the visit of Mrs. Rogers, repeating what she had told him, and dilating upon their interview with the boy in the Tombs.

"What did he say?" Harward asked.

"I don't feel at liberty to repeat that until I've spoken to Peter Winslow," Barry answered, "but it's given me two clues that I'd like to follow up."

"All right," Ernie said. "Follow 'em. Your salary's fifty dollars a week. Report straight to me."

"Yes, sir."

"Wait a minute. I'll put you next to somebody who'll introduce you at police headquarters. We've got that angle covered, of course, but you'd better be in touch there. What I want you to do is to follow your own leads Bring in something."

"Roth, come here!" he called. "I want you to take Mr. Gilbert down to the homicide bureau."

Nothing seemed entirely impossible that bright mid-May morning, as Barry swung into Broadway.

Up to now, he owed everything to his imposture — that first stake, the clothes he wore, Peter Winslow's favor, and all that had followed. They constituted an amazingly fortuitous chain of circumstances. But the chain had lifted him to solid ground. "It's up to me now," Barry said, feeling square with himself, and the world, and strangely gay and self-confident.

"I'm going to start right," he said, "by paying those bills, and giving Peggy the rest of that two hundred. I'm going to figure up my board and room at Southampton, and give her that, too. A fellow like me can't afford to be crooked."

Speed of Sound

The speed with which sound travels through various materials varies greatly. In air, sound waves move 1,087 feet per second. They move through water nearly five times as fast as through air, and through hard dense materials such as steel and glass the sound waves travel from 15 to 20

Uncommon Sense

Travel

A good many thousand people have lately returned from European lands. Some of them know what they wanted to see when they got there and saw it.

They got something useful and unforgettable out of their trips.

The majority of them went there chiefly for the purpose of showing their neighbors that they could afford it.

They would have learned a great deal more if they had stayed at home and looked at the local scenery.

Darwin's idea of a place worth seeing was the extreme or almost the extreme tip of the South American continent.

He wrote a book about his travels which you will do well to read if you haven't read it already.

Marco Polo, perhaps the first explorer, learned more in a few years about the fun and interest to be got out of traveling than his fellows had got in all their life-times.

* * *

A thirst for travel springs from a thirst for knowledge, and that is a thirst for education and enlightenment.

Fabre, observing the actions and habits of spiders in his little back yard, and Maeterlinck, making similar studies of bees, gave the world something to think about and ponder on for the rest of its life. Yet neither of them in gaining their special knowledge needed to move from their homes.

I think that in some future time, which may not be far off, college professors will take the young men and women under their charge to distant lands and distant places, or even to spots close to home and deliver lectures on the way.

* * *

A very great writer said that "Home-keeping youths have ever homely wits."

By home-keeping he meant remaining "local boys" who only see the interesting manifestations of life and Nature, and learn nothing about them.

If you cannot travel in person, travel by means of books, or by listening to those who have seen the world with the definite purpose of learning all that one can learn about it.

Interest and excitement help to mold life for the better.

Get all you can of both. Never let your wonder lag.

We are just beginning to learn what we ought to know about this planet of ours.

Instruction is now definite and systematized.

Make the most of it, and you will be making the most of life.

* * *

You can, of course, learn from your own mistakes.

Mistakes

But to do that you must admit to yourself that they are mistakes.

For the average man that is difficult.

Nobody wants to admit that he is in the wrong—even to himself.

The best way to make progress is to learn from the mistakes of other people.

That will open to you a wide and fertile field.

In the old days of rough and ready doctoring, it was said that many physicians buried their mistakes, and therefore never got any blame for them.

But that was in another time, when even the practice of medicine was on the cut and try system.

Today most doctors know their business. They must or they rapidly cease to have any practice.

* * *

As soon as a doctor finds it possible to leave his practice for a short time, he heads straight for one of the great medical colleges or medical centers, and brushes up on his business.

The result is that many more sick people are brought back to health, and many more well people continue well, because their doctors tell them how to take care of themselves.

Naturally the practice of medicine has gone ahead of most other professions.

The most important thing to every man or woman is life. And if their lives are endangered or made a burden to them by illness they at once turn for help to the men whose trade it is to keep people well.

But let me get back to my topic.

* * *

When somebody you know—somebody who ought to have succeeded—has failed in his business or his profession, try to find out why.

If he is fairly intelligent, as I take it that your friends are, there must be some reason for his failure.

Dig that reason out, if you can.

Learn where and why he committed mistakes.

Then overhaul your own mental machinery, and see whether or not you are taking the same road.

That will involve a little thinking, but thinking, as far as I know, has never injured anybody.

Life with all its activities is constantly going on around you.

Make careful use of it, note the rise or fall of men around you.

Then when you are put to some crucial test, you will know how to take the right course.

Interpreting The Noise

Any sharp, regular noise coming from under the hood, indicates a shorting of one of the ignition wires or that one of them has become disconnected from its plug.

The exhaust, at the same time, should reveal a skip in the engine. Modern engine performance is so smooth it sometimes is difficult to tell when a cylinder is "missing."

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What are mussels?

Answer: There are two large families of shell fish known as mussels. The name is derived from the Latin musculus, meaning little mouse, and was formerly spelled muscle. It was the presence of large numbers of these shell fish in the well known rapids of the Tennessee River that gave that place its name of Muscle Shoals. The shellfish found in that locality belong to the family of fresh water mussels; the other family consists of sea mussels. Each is composed of a soft, dark colored body enclosed in a hinged shell consisting of a right and a left valve.

Two species of sea mussels are edible. The common species of the north temperate zone is a favorite shellfish on European tables, and the United States Bureau of Fisheries has urged Americans to add it to their diet. Farmers near the coast regions find it a valuable fertilizer. This mussel is about three inches long, though some of the largest specimen are twice that length. Its shell is black on the outside, pearly blue within.

By means of a tuft of long, silky filaments at one end of the shell, the mussel anchors itself to rocks, sometimes remaining fixed for a lifetime. Fresh water mussels are especially valued as the source of pearl buttons, made from the mother of pearl on the inside of the shells. Those of the Mississippi River are the basis of an important industry. The pearls found in mussels are not so valuable as those produced by oysters. There are about 1,000 species of mussels.

Question: What do muskrats eat and for what is their fur used?

Answer: These animals feed on the roots, stems and leaves of water plants, and on fruits and vegetables found near homes. They also eat insects, worms, and mollusks.

They are hunted and trapped in the late fall and winter. Their fur, which is dyed to imitate marten and mink, is used for making caps, gloves, and coat linings. It is also one of the most popular furs for women's coats, because of its durability and comparatively low cost. It is available in tan, brown and silver grey shades. When the long hair is removed and the silky under fur dyed, the latter is sold as Hudson seal.

Question: Where is the deepest lake in the United States and how high above sea level is it?

Answer: Crater Lake in Crater Lake National Park, Oregon, is in the sunken crater of Mount Mazama. It is of wonderful clearness and is probably the deepest lake in the United States, being 2000 feet in depth. It lies 6239 feet above the sea level.

Question: Where is Minot Lighthouse?

Answer: For 75 years its light has stood firm against boisterous seas, lighting many a ship to its home safely into Boston Harbor.

ASSISTANCE GIVEN ON FHA LOANS BY LUMBER FIRM

Realizing the need for more homes on the peninsula, the lumber products promotion has undertaken a free service in the upbuilding of peninsula values by assisting the prospective home owner to secure quick action on loans through FHA program.
